As for unions, the country wanted only a few of them, and those meek and timid.

During the first third of my active life, many good men and women who might been more usefully engaged spent most of their time and energy trying to bring about the prohibition of alcoholic liquor. They were convinced that if this were done, crime and poverty would disappear overnight and the country would turn into a paradise with pink ribbons on it. The waste of national resources was going on apace, and not one man in a thousand took it at all seriously. The country looked on approvingly as Mississippi Valley farmers mined the fertility out of the and suitcase ranchers, farther West, in the wet-weather cycle.

In those days, a man's home may or may with his employes were strictly his own affair; if he happened to be mean and tightfisted, as many times he was, his workers took it in silence or moved on somewhere else when they had a chance.

Buying was concentrated in a few higher-priced favorites and industrial specialties. American Telephone was up 2 in late trading. Other gainers included Allied Chemical, Industrial Rayon, Loft, Celanese, Spicer, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco and J. C. Penney.

Little change was recorded for such issues as General Motors, General Electric, du Pont, Consolidated Edison and New York Central Many issues did not trade.

Steels held in a narrow zone with the main list, despite forecas of a drop in the week's operating rate to 38.5 per cent from 54.3 las week. The decline was attributed mainly to Fourth of July shut downs. Lockheed, Cities Service and

Great Atlantic were up a little in drifting Curb market. Corporate bonds also steered a steady course in slack trade.

Silk, up sharply, was among the few lively markets.

News of the Day. Wall Street commentators ex-pressed relief to see the week end pass without an eruption in Eu rope but it was pointed out the Danzig issue apparently remained to be settled before the summe was out. NEW YORK, July 3 (AP).—

In the quietest market in 17 years, a handful of stocks moved ahead today, led by American Telephone.

Transactions, totaling 235,140 shares, were the smallest since a comparable market before the Fourth of July holiday in 1922.

Brokers' board rooms, thinly attended in recent sessions, were further depopulated by the vacation exodus. Many had departed to stay away from the infancial district away from the infancial district shift of the financial district shift in the financial d until after the Fourth of July recess.

While most of the usual trading favorites barely moved, dealings in the fourth hour slackened to only 12,000 shares.

The approaching holiday added to the suspense of waiting the outcome of the Danzig situation and final congressional action on monetary and other pending legislation.

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP).—May sales of chain store systems were approximated for the interest of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

About 4 per cent of the increase was attributed to one more ahopping day this year than last, leaving a net improvement of around 8½ per cent.

Grocery, 10-cent and variety and shoe chains showed marked improvement over a year ago, but candy chains lost ground. Percentage changes of May, 1939, compared with the same month last year follow:

set. I don't know what to do. I love my sweetheart and want to marry him, but I had always expected my parents to be at my wedding, and they absolutely refuse to come. What should I do?"

--0-0-DIAGNOSIS: It is inhumane to torture any prospective bride in this fashion. No domineering parent should try to compel his daughter to select a husband on the basis of the young man's occupation. Geraldine's father is a successful business man. But that doesn't mean she must also marry another business man. If she happens to fall in love with a dentist, a school teacher or a clergyman, and all other signs point to a happy married life, then it is inexcusable for any parent to act like Geraldine's father. Perhaps many of you readers will think this is a unique case in civilized America, or that it belongs in the melodrama category. But I receive scores of such cases from every large community where this column is running.

Geraldine's father is an educated man. He holds a college degree. He is a business success, and is certainly mature in his physical development and chronological age. But emotionally he is still a selfish kindergartener. Despite our scientific and educational progress during the past few centuries, we have made little advancement in our emotional growth. Thousands of adults are still kiddish and juvenile in many of their actions. Geraldine's father is simply jealous of her fiance. Having been the big, dominant male in her life for 21 years, he refuses to give up first place in her affections. His objection regarding the clergy is simply a smoke screen. He would have objected to any man, regardless of the latter's business or profession.

GERALDINE TOLD me that her father was always glad to see her have many boy friends and many dates provided she didn't go with one man more than a few times. He realized that many suitors meant that she wasn't seriously centering her affection on any one man. So paja knew he was still her chief sweetheart.

Now that she has become engaged, he is raging with typical childish jealousy. He is like a youngster who suddenly receives a new baby brother or sister without any previous warning, and finds his parents giving the major portion of their time to the newcomer. The youngster may be bitterly jealous. So is Geraldine's father.

I advised her to write a tactful letter to her father, complimenting his virtues and showing him she still loved him, but to go ahead and marry, regardless.

Several years ago we began a campaign in this column concerning the question of color blindness as a hazard in automobile drivers. This has been pretty thoroughly investigated since then, and although there are about 20 per cent of men who are partially color blind, accidents ong them are not more numerous than with others, so our point ems not well substantiated, the hazard of the ordinary street signal is considerable. Wherever they have "biological signals," with ously turning wheel showing red and green, alternating with strips of yellow, so the driver can see how long he has to wait or how much time he has to go, they have reduced motor accidents.

On the subject of night accidents, a new pil sical handicap has been discovered in night blindness. This occurs in about 15 per cent of drivdition vision is abnormally decreased by glare. This is the result of inadequate reger ration of vis-ual purple in the retina. Normally rapid regeneration of visual purple can take place only if there is an adequate supply of vitamin A,

This discovery of the relationship between vitamin A deficiency and Rapid cure of night blindness can be effected, in most instances, by oil or halibut liver oil. Dr. P. S. Luedde, in the Missouri State Medical study of applicants relative to dark adaptation in accordance with

SYNOPSIS

SYNOPSIS

Two misfortunes have befallen the otherwise happy Osborne family within 24 hours. First, its head, Stephen, age 50, lost his job; then, the next morning, a telegram from Aunt Octavia announces the visit that day of this rich but decidedly unpopular relative. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne urge their five children "to be nice to her." Dorothy, 23; Ann, 19; Michael, 17; Marjory, 14, and Peter, 12, agree to "be like cats around a saucer of cream." The Osbornes have a veteran servant, Hannah Gale, and a visitor, "Uncle" Simon, elderly Bohemian and author of parts. When he learns of Octavia's coming, he decides to leave after telling Ann what a terror her aunt is how bitter. Octavia has been in legally keeping from Stephen his moral share in their tather's large estate.
